EnsanitygarbadoXaniGoldenBigthunder556HarrySDementedDemons must be rated to be included in this listImms who receive a hacked update changing difficulty will be moved to the legacy section of the list. Alternatively, if a demon gets a hacked update before the list-worthy, it won't get added. However, a demon whose original original was hacked will still get on the list. Records must be legal and either uploaded to YouTube, Vimeo, Bilibili, or streamed to be added to the list. Anyone who publishes illegal recordings and transfers them as legitimate will have their files removed from the list. Illegal files include, but are not limited to, speedhacks, noclip, automatic, nerfs, macros, etc. Files on one level must be in normal mode and in the live version of the layer or in an appropriate bug fixed/low detail copy of that level. Refer to the error and LDM instructions. The registry holder must meet the percentage requirement of a level in order to be added to the list for that level. Verifications are not counted as records in the list, but still award points. Being in a group in which users beat levels for the same channel will cause your records to be temporarily removed from the list. Records that use a layer's built-in LDM are always appropriate. Eligible entries in appropriate copies of LDM layers. Please contact a List Coordinator if you are not sure which decorations can or cannot be removed. In general, an LDM copy should not remove decorations that interfere with the player's vision, blind transitions, flashes or boss battles, for example. Referring to the first guideline, if the previously declared decorations are removed in the built-in LDM of a level though, it is perfectly fine to use. Entries in appropriate copies of layer errors for different refresh rates are eligible. Please contact a List Coordinator if you are not sure what is or is not an error. Note: Please don't post nonsense, it only makes it harder for all of us and will get you banned. Also note that the form rejects duplicate submissions. Submit a file! Several minor errors observed during the transfer over the old python backend were stable and performance has improved significantly. In addition to this, it is mostly an internal change, so that the of (visible) changes is rather short: I have (once again) redesigned the home page! More specifically, it has merged with the first page or so, as both were very under-used. Demonlist now has an overview page here, which shows a real list (revolutionary, I know) of all demonsThe API has been significantly revised. Most changes should be backward compatible since they just added a ton of fields, but there are some other changes as well, so be sure to check the documentation again. Mostly, there is no status parameter for demons anymore and has become the most general 'player.recordsThere is now deeper integration with GD servers, allowing me to display additions stats for each demon. The code for calculating the length of the level and accurately counting the objects contributed by cos8o, so great thanks to him! Now to some more serious topics: As some of you may know, I took a second undergrad (mathematics) course in October, meaning that my university program became much more demanding, leaving me with almost no time to work in pointercrate. Development for divisive bots related to pointercrate and the Demonlist has already been undertaken by GunnerBones, and with pointercrate becoming open source, I hope to find more people will work on it. It's been a year since I rented the pointercrate domain and started hosting Demonlist! Today I am pleased to announce the official pointercrate API, which can be used for programming access of Demonlist. The documentation can be found here. Further minor changes include:Internal recasting of how young list users are validated. Now they're using the account system. The site now integrates beautifully into discord! We added a link to the official Demonlist discord server, which is an awesome place where I get help with spell checking. Find it on the server discord! The API is actually just the first step in something more awesome hopefully coming soon)... to fix various issues we had with the old version: The old home page was thrown together in 5 minutes and you all knew it!Scrollbars were working strangely or not on allOn mobile you could not close the Demonlist after clicking on this strange button in the lower left cornerY were too blueMost of these issues arose because the old version was not designed with mobile in mind, and mobile support was hacked in later. The new design uses a mobile approach and should respond much more. Page 2Click the name of a player on the left to get started!
